Former Premier Makes Speech Showing Calmette's Relations With Government.

Paris, July 27.-When Madame Calllany took her seat in court today she appeared much calmer than on preceding days, although she had suffered two fainting spells last night. When court opened M. Caillaux demanded that he be heard. He said, "The Figaro, having accused me today of suborning witnesses, I would like to submit to the court some authentic papers concerning the late Gaston Calmette's relations with the Hungarian government. I had hesitated to use them but have decided to do so in view of the Figaro's attitude. I desire also to read the late Calmette's will."

Maitre Chenu exclaimed: "How did you get it." Caillaux replied, "In the same way you got my letters."

Caillaux then proceeded to read the Trial Many Featured.

Most remarkable things have happened at this trial, and not the least is the threatened duel between the president of the court, Judge Louis Albanel, and one of the other judges, Louis Dagoury. The duel awaits the decision of the minister of justice; meanwhile the judges pass each other scornfully.

M. Caillaux himself called the counsel for the Calmette family to terms for a suggestion made in the court room. This, too, may end in a duel.

A heated suggestion of German inmette had charged M. Caillaux with having betrayed French interests in the Maroccan affair, and M. Caillaux told the jury that the Figaro, of which Calmette was the editor, was owned across the Rhine; that Calmette had been the instrument of France's enemies in causing discord in the French capital. What with the Fabre document in the Rochette banking frauds and the influence of the ministers upon the courts and prosecutors, the republican government has in some sense been on trial.

"O, it is only letting cats out of transparent bags," the monarchists say. "We knew it all before, but now the squalling of the cats makes everybody look.'

Paris Finds Thrills.

Paris vibrates with the daily thrills of the trial. Cabarets and music halls laugh nightly over freshly turned skits storm center of the state for the rest and burlesques on those most prominent in the trial.

There is a cynical disposition in Paris to take the trial lightly, as something prearranged.

The aged Empress Eugenie, at a dinner party of imperialists recently, having listened to much talk about dirty republican linen, how the ministers and their wives and mistressed anything from a court fight to a riot lived, and how the stage was set for may happen before the complete list the acquittal of Mme Caillaux, rebuked the gossipers.

"No, I cannot imagine the judges of France will act othewise than accord ing to their intellects and consciences, she said.

The procedure within the court would be a source of amazement to the American or English spectator. The privilege is accorded of exploring all the bylaws and hedges leading to the scene of the crime.
